BAND TO APPEAR IN CONCERT SUNDAY

Musical Program Will Be Rendered At the Masonic Theater

A rare treatment is in store for the community on Sunday afternoon. At that time the local talent, composed of the business people and young men of the community, will render a special musical program which is worthy the praise of larger cities. The occasion is a concert to be given by the Albany-Decatur band at the Masonic theatre, beginning at 3 o'clock and augmented by a vocal selection by Mrs. Joe etty with band accompaniment, and a clarinet solo by Prof. H. B. Marston with piano accompaniment by Mrs. H. O. Troup. The program for the concert is as follows:

March, "The N-C-4" (Bigelow).
Waltz, "Sea Breezes" (Losey).
Descriptive overture, "The Fall of Jericho" (Maillochand).
Clarinet solo, "In the Deep Cellar," played by Prof. Marston; Mrs. H. O. Troup, accompanist.
Danza Habanera, "La Lirana" (Burke).
Waltz, "On Miami Shore" (Jacobi).
Selection, "The Bohemian Girl" (Boile).
Vocal solo, "The Garden of Tomorrow" (Depen), sung by Mrs. Jop Petty.
Selection, "Memories of Spethen Forte" (Holmes).
Characteristic, "March of the Siamese" (Lincke).
This is complimentary to the citizenship of Albany-Decatur and the surrounding territory, and no admission is to be charged but in order to adequately maintain the organization, the public may, if it so desires, make a silver contribution at the door.

The Albany-Decatur band has passed the amateur stage and has on sundry occasions contributed its time to various functions. There is no means of supporting the band and some cost is necessary though the individual members have always given freely of their time without compensation.

ORDER MEDICINE FROM CAPITOL

Pasteur Treatment To Be Administered By Dr. A. M. Roan

Despite the fact that the general public had thought the time for the appearance of rabies in animals has passed, with the approach of fall, several children in Albany-Decatur now are receiving pasteur treatment from Dr. A. M. Roan and press dispatches from Montgomery state that eight applications for pasteur treatment were received there Tuesday from points in Alabama.

Three local children are receiving treatment, after having received infection from a dog, the head of which showed traces of rabies, while this morning the head of a cat, which died in fits, was examined at the Tennessee Valley laboratory, and revealed traces of the disease.

The cat was said to have bitten or scratched little Frances Worsham, six year old niece of Mrs. Nettie Macklin, 1108 Sixth avenue, and Mrs. Macklin. Examination of the cat's head was made at the laboratory this morning and Dr. Roan ordered the pasteur treatment by telegraph from Montgomery. The treatment will arrive here tomorrow morning and will be administered at once.

The condition of Helen Marie Smith, aged 2; Willie Parker, 6, and Frances Parker, aged 4, was reported as satisfactory today, following administration to them of the pasteur treatment. The Smith child and Frances Parker were said to have been bitten by a dog several days ago, while Willie Parker, it was feared, has received infection from the same dog, with which she had played.

TEXAS MAN CHAMP OF COTTON PICKERS

Letter Tells of Record Made By Calame Years Ago

Will Calame, of Wortham, Texas, appears to have won the title of champion cotton picker, according to a letter received by The Daily from A. W. Henderson, of that city, a reader of this newspaper.

Mr. Henderson writes: "I have been reading your valuable paper for some months, it having been sent to my mother, who formerly lived in Albany. I have read lots of statements about cotton picking in old Morgan county, where the pickers picked from 175 lbs. to 405 lbs. This is above an average, especially in Morgan county, but please allow me to tell you about some Texas picking. I have a friend here in Wortham, his name is Will Calame.

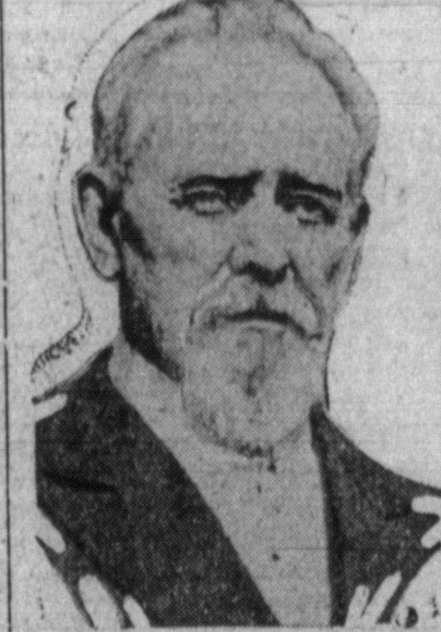

"Mr. Calame is now the leading cotton buyer of our little city, but he was raised on the farm and the year of the Galveston flood, Mr. Calame picked three weeks in his own crop, the smallest day's picking being 606 pounds and the largest was 648 pounds. Mr. Calame has picked 408 pounds in half a day.

"At the time Mr. Calame did this three weeks' picking he was paying for his first 80 acres of land, batching, doing his own cooking. Today he has more than 1,100 acres of land, and has prospects of several oil wells.

BRIEF FILED TODAY ASKS DISSOLUTION IN 'EFFECTIVE' WAY

"Greater Competitive" Conditions Sought In U. S. Appeal

CONSENT DECREE CALLED FAILURE

Company Is Accused of Being Combination Restraining Trade

(Associated Press)
ST. PAUL, Oct. 23.—"Effective dissolution" to the International Harvester company's alleged monopoly of the farm machinery business is sought by Attorney General Stone in a brief filed in his behalf in federal court today by the United States Attorney in process of appeal.

Mr. Stone contends that greater competitive conditions in the farm machinery trade should be afforded. "One of the two things ought to be done," the Attorney General suggests, "Either the great judge who decided that this case ought to be reversed upon the ground that their decision was wholly erroneous, or else an effective dissolution should be decreed."

The consent decree failed to affect "any substantial competition," the brief adds, "during a test period which ended 18 months after the declaration of peace. On the contrary, it says, eight of the harvester company's competitors went out of business in that time and the defendants' companies percentage of total business actually increased in 1922—the last selling season under the test period, which was established to permit an accurate survey of the results of the consent decree under peace time conditions.

"That the International Harvester company is in combination in restraint of trade and a monopoly in violation of the Sherman law," the brief asserts, "is conclusively established."

ANOTHER HATFIELD MEETS HIS DEATH

Ancient Feudists In West Virginia Are Still Rioting

(Associated Press)
BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 23.—Another violent death has been recorded in the family of the notorious Hatfield clan of West Virginia and Kentucky. Recalling the days of the Tug River feud between the Hatfield and McCoy clans, veteran officials of the Mingo county today were investigating the killing of Alex Hatfield the latest of his line to feel the sting of a bullet.

Alex, son of the man who started the far famed feud of years ago, was the victim. During an argument over the coming election Hatfield is said to have called Thurman Chambers told officials that he struck Hatfield with his fist whereupon the latter drew a pistol and in a struggle for possession of the weapon Hatfield was shot. He died in a Williamson hospital Tuesday.

Alex Hatfield former postmaster of the Matewan (West Virginia) post office was the son of Floyd Hatfield whose suit for a litter of hogs against the McCoy's of Kentucky marked the beginning of a feud in the hills along the Tug river during the years in which a number have met their death.

Independents To Play Saturday Southern Conference Battles Loom

Saturday afternoon at the Cooper-Wells field the Independents, sometimes fondly referred to as the "Odds and Ends," will play the Moulton Independents. The Moulton aggregation is made up of high school players, ex-high school players and grid stars of recent years and should provide a splendid opportunity for the local lads to display their pent up emotions which they were unable to get rid of in the scheduled last Saturday game that failed to materialize.

It is very probable that the local Independents will start Captain Ellison, Gustin, McRee and McAbee in the backfield with Speer, Cobb, Watson, Kirby, Byers, Bowen and Shelton in the line. The practice this week has been of a light variety and the practice this afternoon departed from the regular menu and consisted of a hard scrimmage workout from which the team emerged in good condition.

Tickets are on advance sale for the Saturday battle that is to be played at 4 o'clock at the Cooper-Wells field. The Moulton team will arrive Saturday morning and the game will be started promptly at 4 o'clock. As Albany High has no game scheduled locally for this week it is assured that a good crowd will be out to see the initial appearance of the Independents.

Saturday afternoon will bring to close quarters some of the best mole skin artist sin the entire south. The end of the week argument includes the heralded season tussle between Georgia Tech and Alabama. Both coaching headquarters are singing the sob song at this stage of the game, but Saturday will find every regular of both squads, in fighting regalia and ready for the fray. Up Nashville way the Vanderbilt Commodore will try for some of his lost prestige with the Georgia Bulldog. Likewise the same weeping press notices are appearing from these camps the idea being to force the rival camp into tears of sympathy that will wash away all hatred before the four game time comes.

Texas and Florida, Washington & Lee and Virginia Poly engage in two of the biggest engagements of the year, the latter while being heralded as the Virginia classic will be more of a grudge fight. V. P. I. is stronger than usual this year and may be able to hang up her second victory in 13 long years over the Generals. North Carolina and Maryland will combat in what may prove the first Maryland conference victory of the year.

The Auburn Tiger faces the Louisiana Tiger, while the V. M. I. Keydets battle Carolina State with a victory for the Keydets in sight. Kentucky and Sewanee engage at Lexington.

What is generally dubbed an eastern engagement will be played at the Polo Grounds between the West Virginia Mountaineers and the Kentucky Centre Colonels. Dope as usual rests with West Virginia as it has in the last two playlets between the two. Each time the Colonel has emerged victorious. This year may prove an exception to the rule with the Mountaineer in prime condition, one of the greatest backfields in the country and a line that is fully as strong as that of last year. The Colonels have been laying low this season and it is probable that the year pointing for this game. Herb Covington is still digging his cleats around rival goal posts and will be as dangerous to Mountaineer hopes as McMillian was in the past. Tennessee plays the Mississippi Aggies. In the east the season progresses

Has the durable Moore's anti-carbon fire pot which stoves 4-10 of the fuel by burning the gas, soot and smoke which in other stoves goes to waste up the chimney. That's how this stove pays for itself.

But you also get warm rooms all over—not just a hot place near the stove because this stove circulates the warmth.

November fourth will make liars out of a lot of otherwise perfectly decent people.

The politicians will do their best to interest, but until the people forget about the world's series they had as well save their pains.

It looks strange the Republicans are accused of gathering a fund of slush, when they have always been full of it.

When war is done away with a perfect day will dawn for the people, but a very imperfect day will appear for the international politics.

There are people who say the world is not improving, yet Sewanee drew a penalty in her Alabama game for cussing.

We've always felt that the road hog deserves no better fate than to be placed in a car on a similar track and allowed to drive himself to death.

In one of the rural districts of Maryland a congressional fight is in progress which may have a direct bearing on the presidency. If the election goes into the house, the vote is likely to be very close. The present Maryland delegation in the house is controlled by the democrats by a majority of one. If the republican candidate in this lone race wins a seat, the delegation will be equally divided between democrats and republicans and therefore will be unable to agree on a candidate. The failure of Maryland to vote in the house election might directly effect the result.

Tourists who passed through here and went to Florida destinations from the north had the right idea, but they carried it too far. While Florida has been suffering from too much rain and strong winds, North Alabama has been enjoying the prettiest fall weather in years.

CANDIDATE JOHN W. DAVIS HAS DONE HIS FULL DUTY; WILL THE VOTERS

No mass meetings have endorsed the platform of the republican party. The people seem not to approve it. There is no enthusiasm for Coolidge. But on the other hand the democratic platform has been endorsed by the members of that party, and the public generally has approved it. When it comes to the democratic candidate for president, Mr. Davis has made good. He has fought hard and consistently. He has met all the requirements of a public speaker. He has held his own personally. No attacks have been made upon his public or private life. Few if any responsible public men would deny that Mr. Davis is by far the best equipped man for the presidency of all the other candidates for the office. What will the voters do about it? In less than three weeks, it will be seen whether or not the people will show a right appreciation for Mr. Davis.

If there is any fault in the way the democratic campaign has been managed it cannot be traced to Mr. Davis.

If the people have not become enthusiastic over the speeches of Mr. Davis it was their own fault, for no speaker of modern times has made abler public addresses than Mr. Davis. If the articles written and sent out by Davis, were not read the fault was not his.

If the reasons he has given for turning the republicans out of office, have not been agreed to, it was no fault of Davis, for he has made the issues as plain as day. In the closing sentences of his recent public address, W. G. McAdoo, makes the following brief appeal for Davis, will the voters heed it.

"Already we have had four years of leaderless government, demoralization and chaos at Washington. Let us turn from that and assure ourselves of four years of clean, orderly, sound and progressive government under a man capable and courageous to lead.—John W. Davis."

MONEY AND INFLUENCE AVOIDED NOTHING FOR ONCE

In a neighboring Southern state a wealthy man who killed another man was found guilty of manslaughter. The defendant's evidence was all that was presented to the twelve jurymen who tried the case. It was claimed that the deceased came at the defendant with an ax, and that the wealthy man killed his opponent on the spot. It was further claimed by the defense and remained uncontradicted that the killing took place at or near the home of the defendant. As a matter of fact the prosecution had no case except that one man had slain another.

The jury said "manslaughter" ignoring the plea of the wealthy man of "self defense." The trial judge in the case was so gratified with the verdict of the jury, that he is said to have exclaimed when the foreman announced it: "The light is breaking."

It is a long lane that has no turning, and the time is overdue and may be at hand earlier than we think when public sentiment will place a higher value on human lives.

Enough verdicts like the one named, will help mightily in raising the price on human life—it has certainly been going entirely too cheaply all through the years. The jury that found the verdict of "guilty" did so on the grounds of "general principles," knowing in their hearts that a man at his own home or any where else has no right to take a life unless it were conclusively shown that there was no other course left open.

The characters of the men in the case were doubtless known to the jurors—a consideration that in all likelihood had much to do with the verdict rendered.

HE PLEADED

Mr. John W. Davis was at his best in his speech delivered yesterday afternoon to the citizenry of Tennessee so vastly assembled in Vanderbilt stadium. He was in the best of physical condition. The weather was delightful and the audience largely sympathetic and the whole occasion inspiring.

There has been during the campaign no censure of criticism of Mr. Davis as a man of clean life, great ability and lofty ideals of public service. He is highly regarded by all, especially those who have come into contact with him personally or under the magic spell of his captivating oratory. He made the life and career of our own great Tennessean, Andrew Jackson, the pivot around which his arguments and appeals revolved.

It was the speech of a strong candidate in opposition to the party in power. He dealt at some length with present tariff iniquities and, from a democratic viewpoint, most convincingly. He stood for honesty in government as in private life and reviewed with scathing irony and considerable humor of a telling character the record of the party in power.

There is nothing mean or unfair in the character or deliverances of Mr. Davis. He speaks out with boldness and clearness and yet keeps himself ever within the limits of the proprieties.

Our people have from time to time listened to the oratory of many men whose names are entwined with fame's garlands. Worthy to be associated with them was the speaker of yesterday. He showed capacity, dignity and frankness and the spirit of perfect fairness gleamed through his entire effort.—Nashville Banner.

AN OLD FASHIONED
LOVE FEAST HELD*Bread and Water Are Served and Hymns
Sung At Meeting

One of the rarities in church life—an old-fashioned "love-feast"—was enjoyed at the Central Methodist church Wednesday, when 107 religious workers spent what proved to be a delightful hour in worship there as led by Dr. James D. Hunter, pastor of the church.

A program similar to the one used by the early Methodists in their "love feasts" was executed—the climax being reached when, at the suggestion of Dr. Hunter, those in the room, went to whom-so-ever had been of great spiritual benefit to them and shook their hands. As the hand-shaking progressed it was only by an effort—that such shouts of triumph were subdued as were so often heard in the congregations of the Methodists of two generations ago.

According to ancient custom, bread and water were served to the communicants last evening instead of the bread and wine served at regular communion occasions. The favorite hymn used was "Love Lifted Me."

The following is an outline of what happened at the "love feast": Dr. Hunter, presided, and himself raised the first hymn—according to the old Methodist custom, Mrs. Seneca Burr serving as piano accompanist.

Following an earnest prayer by Judge L. P. Troup, the meeting was turned over to H. L. Spencer, who read Paul's famous chapter on "love" beginning with the words: "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels and have not love, I am become as a sounding brass and a clanging cymbal."

After his scripture reading and comments, Mr. Spencer named the following who served the bread and water to the company: T. M. Foust, C. D. Patterson, J. D. Ligon, J. D. Bush, W. F. Rauschenberg, J. F. Lovin, Prof. W. C. Hughes, Judge L. P. Troup, S. B. Burr, and T. E. Putnam. In the testimony meeting which followed there were about 30 who gave statements of hope and encouragement. It was following these testimonies that Dr. Hunter asked all who had been helped to shake hands with those who had benefited them.

B. A. Turner, chairman of the publicity committee, announced that Thursday evening prayer meetings will be held with the following: Mrs. D. L. Blakwell, Mrs. C. H. Chunn, Mrs. Conrad Strickland, and Mrs. T. M. Miller.

Reports on attendance at cottage prayer meetings Tuesday night as made at the church last night showed 17 present at one meeting; 50 present at meetings in West Albany, and 27 present at meetings in Central Albany.

Reception Planned For Church Leaders

A reception is planned on Friday evening at the Central Methodist church for Dr. and Mrs. W. P. McGlawn with several interesting features added to the regular musical and social program.

Dr. McGlawn is to finish his term as presiding elder of this district at the close of the present conference year and this tribute is being paid him for his splendid achievements he has accomplished while head of this district.

Dr. J. L. Gunter will preside at the reception and after the opening prayer is offered by Rev. A. L. Mathews, of the Ninth street Methodist church, the speakers of the occasion will be introduced.

The speakers for the evening and their subjects will be Judge L. P. Troupe "McGlawn a Pastor;" C. W. Mathews, "McGlawn a Friend;" A. G. Patterson, "McGlawn a Friend;" Reverend L. F. Goodwin, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church will speak of "McGlawn a Fellow Pastor." Reverend James D. Hunter will speak of Dr. McGlawn as "McGlawn, an Elder."

After the addresses of the evening refreshments will be served by the church ladies and a musical program enjoyed. The membership of the church is expected to attend.

Patterson Back From Montgomery

John Patterson, one of the legislators from Morgan county, has returned from a short business trip to Montgomery. Mr. Patterson discussed highway matters while in the capital.

"I was informed also," said Mr. Patterson, "that the crop conditions in South and Central Alabama are good. The cotton crop is said to be the best in years. The rains during the summer seemed to come just at the right time to aid the cotton in maturing."

County Agent
For Course

November will be "terracing month" in Morgan county and a series of terracing schools will be conducted in this county during that time, it was announced Thursday by J. C. Ford, county farm agent.

Mr. Ford said: "By arrangement with the Agricultural Engineering Department at Auburn, November is to be terracing month for Morgan county. Eight schools of three days each are to be held in eight centers so as to divide the county as equally as possible.

At the close of the school, those who qualify will be given certificates of efficiency, which will be recognized by the Federal Land Bank at New Orleans.

LAWRENCE BOARD ASKS FOR SUPPORT

Two Communities Ask
Permission To Tax
Themselves.

The Lawrence county board of education, in a card addressed to the voters of Alabama, asks consideration for the constitutional amendment, to be voted on in November, which would permit the residents of the Town Creek and Landersville communities to tax themselves for their schools.

The card follows: At the general election coming in November of this year, you will be asked to consider several amendments to our state constitution. Your special attention is asked for the one pertaining to three school districts in Lawrence county. In substance it is:

"To allow the voters of Town Creek school District No. 59, Moulton School District No. 28, and Landersville School District No. 23, to vote to place upon themselves a tax not to exceed five mills annually for the purpose of acquiring, constructing or repairing of school buildings in such districts, or, payment of school buildings already built."

Your support of the measure is asked for these reasons:

1. Your vote affects none but the citizens of the three districts and only gives them the privilege of voting the tax upon themselves.

2. Town Creek has built a costly brick building to meet her growing needs. She owes heavily on the building. She is maintaining a nine-month accredited high school. Your vote and influence will help her in the struggle.

3. Moulton and Landersville are badly in need of school buildings. Your vote will assist in giving this to their children without cost to you. Please ask your neighbor to vote with you for the good of these schools. Signed,

POUNDING GIVEN MRS. TALL-THA SHERRILL

Some of the many friends of Mrs. Talitha Sherrill surprised her in a most agreeable manner when on last Tuesday night they called at her home on Rock street, bringing to her a generous pounding. Mrs. Sherrill has been a genuine asset to this town, and for that matter wherever she has made her home. When the services of a capable woman were needed, she has always been ready to respond, and in the sick room she is well nigh indispensable. Many homes remember her tender services when affliction came, and she was generally among the first to respond. She has been afflicted with rheumatism for sometime, and is not as active as she formerly was, but she is always looking out for an opportunity to do some helpful act.

TEMPERATURE DROPS DECIDEDLY

There was a scampering for coal scuttles and blankets last Tuesday night when the temperature dropped decidedly, following a very warm wave of several days' duration. Practically every home started the winter fires, and it was quite a relief from the very unseasonable warm weather which has prevailed for the last three weeks.

DUST NUISANCE BAD

Hartselle is in the throes of a dust nuisance. The heavy traffic and continued dry weather has made it about the worst on record. True the streets in the downtown section are hard surfaced, but the constant traffic rakes much dust, and merchants on Main street have a hard time keeping their stocks in good condition.

COTTON 65 PER CENT GATHERED

Several well informed planters in this section have estimated the cotton crop as 65 per cent gathered. It is practically all open and when the picking over is made again practically all will be out. Cotton has balled and opened right in the top of the stalk this season, the weevil appearing too late to do any damage. It is said at the ginneries that large quantities of weevil are passing through the dust tubes back of ginstans, but this is one season that no complaint whatever has been made of weevil damage.

NATIVE APPLES SOLD

A fine lot of native grown apples neatly crated in bushel crates was brought here by truck from Vinemont this week, and found ready sale, one merchant buying the truck load. These apples were grown near Vinemont, and the grower says he has six hundred bushels to sell. They were the York Imperial, of very fine size and taste, and carries the argument that fine fruit can be grown and find a market in this country. The grower said that he had a power sprayer, and that he industriously used it through the growing season. The delicious apple is being grown by some parties near Hartselle, and the trees bore some fine apples this season. Those who have been testing out these new varieties of apples, say, that all is necessary once the tree is set and begins a vigorous growth, is to use the spray freely and industriously through the growing season.

Mrs. P. G. Kimbrough returned to Atlanta with her daughter, Mrs. Larkin, last Monday, where she will spend several days.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jones, Jr., of Decatur, came Wednesday to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. William Kimbrough.

Don't Lose Sight of the Food Value of Your Bakings

Plain flour has a large amount of food value but it must be combined with good baking powder in order to retain this value.

Most self rising flours are not successful because they do not raise the bakings to the proper lightness. This means a certain loss of nutrition because they are heavy and hard to digest.

Every time you eat food that does not properly digest you do not get the full nutritional value—you are over-taxing your stomach. Nourishing and perfect bakings are what good health demands. The one sure way is—use pure flour and good baking powder.

If you want to find what thousands of housewives have learned—make some biscuits with self-rising flour—then make some with good plain flour and Calumet Baking Powder—notice the great difference. One trial will satisfy you. Your health demands that you make the experiment.

Those who know—millions of housewives, domestic science teachers, big hotels, restaurants, bakeries and railroads—use anything but Calumet, the Economy Baking Powder.

Play safe—use Calumet and plain flour. It is the most economical and satisfactory, where light, wholesome and pure foods are desired.

Sakr-el-Bahr himself paced the poop deck of the carack and watched the lights perish one by one in the little town that straggled up the hillside before him. The moon came up and bathed it in a white hard light, throwing sharp ink shadows of rustling date palm and spear-like minaret, and flinging shafts of silver athwart the peaceful bay.

His wound was healed, and he was fully himself once more. Two days ago he had come on deck for the first time since the fight with the Dutchman, and he had spent there the greater portion of the time since then. Once only had he visited his captives. He had risen from his couch to repair straight to the cabin in the poop where Rosamund was confined. He had found her pale and very weak, but with her courage entirely unbroken.

The Godolphins were a stiff-necked race, and Rosamund bore in her frail body the spirit of a man. She looked up when he entered, started a little in surprise to see him at last, for it was the first time he stood before her since he had carried her off from Arwenack some four weeks ago. Then she had averted her eyes and sat there, elbows on the table, as if carved of wood, as if blind to his presence and deaf to his words.

To the expressions of regret—and they were sincere, for already he repented him his unpremeditated act so far as she was concerned—she returned no slightest answer, gave no sign, indeed, that she heard a word of it. Baffled, he stood gnawing his lip a moment and gradually, unreasonably perhaps, anger welled up from his heart. He turned and went out again. Next he had visited his brother, to consider in silence a moment the haggard, wild-eyed, emaciated wretch who shrank and cowered before him in the consciousness of guilt. At last he returned to the deck, and there, as I have said, he spent the greater portion of the last three days of that strange voyage, reclining for the most part in the sun and gathering strength from its ardor.

Tonight as he paced under the moon a stealthy shadow crept up the companion to call him gently by his English name:

"Sir Oliver!"

He started as if a ghost had suddenly leaped up to greet him. It was Jasper Leigh who hailed him thus.

"Come up," he said. And when the fellow stood before him on the poop:

"I have told you already that there is no Sir Oliver. I am Oliver-Rels or Sakr-el-Bahr, as you please, one of the Faithful of the Prophet's House. And now what is your will?"

"Have I not served you faithfully and well?" quoth Captain Leigh. "Who has denied it?"

"None. But neither has any acknowledged it. When you lay wounded below it had been an easy thing for me to have played the traitor. I might have sailed these ships into the mouth of Tagus. I might so, by God!"

"You'd have been carved in pieces on the spot," said Sakr-el-Bahr.

"I might have hugged the land and run the risk of capture and then claimed my liberation from captivity."

"And found yourself back on the galleys of his Catholic Majesty. But there! I grant that you have dealt loyally by me. You have kept your part of the bond. I shall keep mine, never doubt it."

"I do not. But your part of the bond was to send me home again."

"Well?"

"The hell of it is that I know not where to find a home, I know not where home may be after these years. If ye send me forth I shall become a wanderer of no account."

"What else am I to do with you?"

"Faith, now, I am as full weary of Christians and Christendom as you was yourself when the Moslems took the galley on which you toiled. I am a man of parts, Sir Ol—Sakr-el-Bahr. No better navigator ever sailed a ship from an English port, and I have seen a mort o' fighting and know the art of it upon the sea. Can ye make naught of me here?"

"You would become a renegade like me?" His tone was bitter.

"I have been thinking that 'renegade' is a word that depends upon which side you're on. I'll prefer to say that I've a wish to be converted to the faith of Mahound."

"Converted to the faith of piracy and plunder and robbery upon the seas is what you mean," said Sakr-el-Bahr.

"Nay, now. To that I should need no converting, for all that I were afore." Captain Leigh admitted frankly. "I ask but to sail under another flag than the Jolly Roger."

"You'll need to abjure strong drink," said Sakr-el-Bahr.

"There be compensations," said Master Leigh.

Sakr-el-Bahr considered. The rogue's appeal smote a responsive chord in his heart. It would be good to have a man of his own race beside him, even though it were but such a rascal as this.

"Be it as you will," he said at last. "You deserve to be hanged in spite of what promises I made you. But no matter for that. So that you become a Moslem I will take you to serve beside me, one of my own lieutenants to begin with, and so long as you are loyal to me, Jasper, all will be well. But at the first sign of faithlessness a rope and the yard-arm, my friend, and an airy dance into hell for you."

The rascally skipper stooped in his emotion, caught up Sakr-el-Bahr's hand and bore it to his lips. "It is agreed," he said. "Ye have shown me mercy who have little deserved it from you. Never fear for my loyalty. My life belongs to you, and worthless thing though it may be, ye may do with it as ye please."

Despite himself Sakr-el-Bahr tightened his grip upon the rogue's hand, and Jasper shuffled off and down the companion again, touched to the heart for once in his rough villainous life by a clemency that he knew to be undeserved, but which he swore should be deserved ere all was done.

CHAPTER XV

MARZAK-BEN-ASAD

It took no less than forty camels to convey the cargo of that Dutch argosy from the mole to the Kasbah, and the procession—carefully marshaled by Sakr-el-Bahr, who knew the value of such pageants to impress the mob—was such as never yet had been seen in the narrow streets of Algiers upon the return of any corsair. It was full worthy of the greatest Moslem conqueror that sailed the seas, of one who, not content to keep to the tideless Mediterranean as had hitherto been the rule of his kind, had ventured forth upon the wider ocean.

"She sat there, as if carved of wood."

Ahead marched a hundred of his rovers in their short caffans of every conceivable color, their waists swathed in gaudy scarves, some of which supported a very arsenal of assorted cutlery; many wore body armor of mail and the gleaming spike of a casque thrust up above their turbans. After them, dejected and in chains, came the five-score prisoners taken aboard the Dutchman, urged along by the whips of the corsairs who flanked them. Then marched another regiment of corsairs, and after these the long line of stately, sneering camels, shuffling cumbrously along and led by shouting Saharawis. After them followed yet more corsairs, and then, mounted on a white Arab jennet, his head swathed in a turban of cloth of gold, came Sakr-el-Bahr.

In the narrower streets, with their white and yellow washed houses, which presented blank windowless walls broken here and there by no more than a slit to admit light and air, the spectators huddled themselves fearfully into doorways to avoid being crushed to death by the camels, whose burdens bulging on either side entirely filled those narrow ways. But the more open spaces, such as the strand on either side of the mole, the square before the sok and the approaches of Asad's fortress, were thronged with a motley, roaring crowd.

There were stately Moors in flowing robes cheek by bowl with half-naked blacks from the Sns and the Dras; lean, enduring Arabs in their spotless white djellabas rubbed shoulders with Berbers from the highlands in black camel-hair cloaks; there were Levantine Turks, and Jewish refugees from Spain ostentatiously dressed in European garments, tolerated there because bound to the Moor by ties of common suffering and common exile from that land that once had been their own.
